

Iteratively re-weighted least squares in sparse optimization
Massimo Fornasier

We introduce iteratively re-weighted least squares algorithms for certain optimization problems associated to sparse vectors, sparse gradients, and low-rank matrix recovery from minimal linear information. We present their convergence analysis and some numerical experiments which confirm the theoretical results.